(b) all of Assignor's right, title and interest in and to all technical information related to the Patents including without limitation, all information (whether or not subject to patent registration or protection) relating to the Patents, such as research and development, methods, trade secrets, know-how, formulas, modifications or improvements, compositions, protocols, processes and techniques, design, discoveries, machines, inventions, ideas, data, statistical information and analyses, documentation produced or compiled by or on behalf of Assignor, computer programs (including software and data used in all such programs, related source and object codes), algorithms, drawings, and specifications (the "Technology"); and
