Inc. (education, consulting, training). Francisco and Maria Coll also jointly owned about seven farm or seaside conference centers in Australia, the United States and Canada; a luxury condo-office in Paris; and the Australian company Americana Leadership College Pty. Ltd. in Sydney and Albury N.S.W. International and U.S. headquarters for both the non-profits and ALC Inc. was in Washington D.C. from 1972 until the present.

29. The corporations founded by Dr. Coll became financially as well as spiritually successful. In 1997-98 the Wayshowers Inc. and F. Coll owned corporations in the U.S. grossed between $630,000 and $900,000. This did not include personal investments and personal services that grossed $125,000-200,000 each; nor all royalties and revenues from the Australian, New Zealand, UK, or Canadian companies and centers.

30. TRADEMARKS. Dr. Coll began registering trademarks in the 1970's and renewed and expanded his registrations in the early 1990's. Seventeen trademarks registered in the United States Patent and Trademark Office to Francisco Coll are listed in Exhibit A hereto. They include eight design or word & design marks and nine textual or word trademarks. They include INNER PEACE MOVEMENT® and the IPM Logo, as well as PEACE COMMUNITY CHURCH® and the Dove Logo. Pertinent to the current cause of action are each of the above plus LA FAMILIA NUESTRA®, LA PUERTA RICA®, and other marks. Each is registered in International Class 041 for educational services such as lectures, courses, seminars, and workshops. All of these registered marks are currently in use and not abandoned; and filings of Affidavits of Continued Use and Incontestability under Sections 8 and 15 of the Lanham Act have been timely filed.

31. Common law trademarks owned by plaintiffs are summarized in Exhibit B. These common law marks include the symbol-textual and textual marks for

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

ESTATE OF FRANCISCO COLL-MONGE, et al.,

Plaintiffs,

v.

INNER PEACE MOVEMENT, et al.,

Defendants.

Civil Action No. 01-271 (EGS)

ORDER

____ Upon consideration of the all the pending summary judgment motions, responses and replies thereto, it is by the Court hereby ORDERED that Defendant Patricia Alexander's Motion for Summary Judgment and Defendant Peter Georgas's Motion for Summary Judgment are DENIED. Enforcing copyrights and trademarks does not infringe on either defendant's Constitutional Right to freedom of speech or the free exercise of religion. Religious works can be afforded copyright protection. See United Christian Scientists v. First Church of Christ, Scientist, 829 F.2d 1152, 1169 (D.C. Cir. 1987). Moreover, while employees and volunteers of non-profit organizations are usually immune from individual liability, that protection does not extend to the "willful misconduct of the employee . . . that resulted in an improper personal benefit of money, property, or service to the employee." D.C. St. § 29-301.113 - 14 (2003); and it is FURTHER ORDERED that plaintiff's motion for partial summary judgment on the trademark count is DENIED. As noted in the August 28, 2002, Memorandum Opinion and Order of this Court, the Estate has not proved that the Dr. Coll intended to register the trademarks for his individual benefit. It is undisputed that Defendants Inner Peace Movement, Inc ("IPM") and Peace Community Church ("PCC") have been using the trademarks in question since 1964 and 1965, respectively. When Dr. Coll registered the trademarks in 1993, he signed the applications as "founder" and/or "president" of IPM and PCC. Represented Defs.' Mot. for Summ. J.: Trademark Application for Inner Peace Movement word mark and logo, Ex. 12, 14; Trademark Application for Peace Community Church word mark and logo, Ex. 13, 15; Section 8 Decl., Ex. 17. The Court finds Dr. Coll's decision to sign the trademark application in that way evidence of his intention to act in a representative capacity. See, e.g., Inside Scoop, Inc. v. Curry, 755 F.Supp. 426, 431 (D.D.C. 1989) (holding that signatures accompanied by the job title trustee "cannot be construed as anything other than as signatures made in a representative capacity").

Moreover, there has been no evidence that Dr. Coll used the IPM and PCC trademarks for his own pecuniary interest independent of the two organizations. In the applications Dr. Coll filed with the Patent and Trademark Office, he indicated the dates of first use of the trademarks as the founding years of IPM and PCC.

Represented Defs.' Mot. For Summ. J.: Trademark Application for

Inner Peace Movement word mark and logo, Ex. 12, 14; Trademark

Application for Peace Community Church word mark and logo, Ex. 13, 15; Section 8 Decl., Ex. 17. Although Dr. Coll checked the box marked individual on the application, he swore under oath that he knew of no other group or person using the trademark in question.

Id. Because Dr. Coll clearly knew that IPM and PCC has been using the trademark for nearly thirty years, the Court must conclude that he intended to register the trademarks in his representative capacity and did not intend them for his individual benefit.

Finally, the "related company" doctrine is inapplicable here.

15 U.S.C. § 1055 (2003). Because the defendants are non-profit organizations with no owners and their actions are controlled solely by their Board of Directors, no one person has control over any actions of the defendants, much less control over the uses of the trademark. See e.g. Represented Defs.' Mot. for Summ. J.: Ex.

2 Francisco D. Coll (Tiger) Dep. Of Apr. 29, 2003 at 143; and it is FURTHER ORDERED that plaintiff's Motion for Summary Judgment on Counts V and VII is DENIED. Copyright infringement requires (1) ownership of a valid copyright by the plaintiff and (2) copying of the protected elements by the defendants. See Feist Publications, Inc. v. Rural Tel. Serv. Co., 499 U.S. 340, 361 (1991). Plaintiffs identified two instances where they claim that IPM and PCC infringed on their copyright: "Man and the Universe" and "521:Leadership of the Orientation Techniques." Pls.' Mot. for Summ. J. On Count V and VII at 10. Yet, plaintiffs did little more than make an unsubstantiated claim that IPM and PCC copied the techniques. Conclusory and unsubstantiated allegations, standing alone, are insufficient for the purpose of satisfying a plaintiff's burden of showing the elements of copyright infringement. See Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 322 (1986).

Further, plaintiffs have provided no factual basis to their claim that Defendants IPM or PCC diverted the contents of the 800 number or the Post Office Box. Moreover, plaintiffs have cited nothing to suggest that IPM and PCC ever exercised ownership, dominion, or control over the allegedly confiscated property. See Gov't of Rwanda v. Rwanda Working Grp., 227 F. Supp. 2d 45, 62 (D.D.C. 2002); and it is FURTHER ORDERED that Defendants Inner Peace Movement, Inc. and Peace Community Church's Motion for Summary Judgment is GRANTED. In order to prevail on a trademark claim, plaintiff must show that they own the mark. Malarkey-Taylor Associates, Inc. v. Cellular Telecommunications Industry Ass'n, 929 F. Supp. 473, 475 (D.D.C. 1996). There is no dispute as to sixty-three of the trademarks plaintiffs cited in their complaint. The claim of infringement on these trademarks is dismissed as a matter of law. As to the five remaining trademarks, plaintiffs are estopped from asserting an ownership interest because the Court finds, as stated previously, that Dr. Coll was acting in his representative capacity when he signed the trademark applications. Moreover, it is a well-settled principle that "there are no rights in a trademark alone and no rights can be transferred apart from the business with which the mark has been associated." J. Thomas McCarthy, Trademarks and Unfair Competition, § 18:2 (4th ed.) (2003). Thus, the Court must find that Defendants IPM and PCC are entitled to summary judgment on the trademark infringement counts.

Because plaintiffs did not file an opposition to Defendant IPM and PCC's Motion for Summary Judgment on Counts III and IV of the Complaint, the Court will treat these Counts as conceded. LCvR 7.1(b).

With regard to Count V, copyright infringement requires (1) ownership of a valid copyright by the plaintiff and (2) copying of the protected elements by the defendants. See Feist Publications, Inc. v. Rural Tel. Serv. Co., 499 U.S. 340, 361 (1991). While plaintiffs identified 1250 works in their complaint, they have done little to specify which of IPM and PCC's works they allege infringe.

Copying, for the purpose of copyright infringement, is any unauthorized use of a protected work. See Country Kids 'N City Slicks v. Sheen, 77 F.3d 1280, 1284 (10th Cir. 1996). A plaintiff may establish copying with direct evidence. See, e.g., Nihon Keitzi Shimbun, Inc., v. Comline Business Data, Inc., 166 F.3d 65, 70 (2d Cir. 1998). Alternatively, a plaintiff may offer indirect evidence to support an inference of copying by showing the existence of access and substantial similarity between the allegedly infringed work and the allegedly infringing work. See Feist Publications, Inc. v. Rural Tel. Serv. Co., 499 U.S. 340, 361 (1991). Moreover, in addition to showing copying, plaintiff must be able to show that the copied elements are protected and that the taking was more than de minimus. Id. Here, plaintiffs have not provided the Court with specific comparisons between IPM and PCC's work and the work they claim has been infringed. The fact that IPM and PCC have continued to conduct lectures and create coursework on ideas akin to the ideas of Dr. Coll does not create a copyright violation. "In no case does copyright protection for an original work of authorship extend to any idea, procedure, process, system, method of operation, concept, principle, or discovery, regardless of the form in which it is described, explained, illustrated, or embodied in such work." 17 U.S.C. § 102(b) (2003). Thus, because plaintiffs have been unable, after exhaustive discovery, to illustrate specific examples of similarity between the allegedly infringed work and the allegedly infringing work, the Court must find that Defendants IPM and PCC are entitled to summary judgment on the copyright infringement claim.

As to Count VI, the claim involving misappropriation of trade secrets, the Court finds that this claim also fails as a matter of law. The evidence shows that several entities, including IPM and ICC, contributed information regarding names, addresses and course enrollment into the databases. (Lassiter Dep. at 212, 215, 221; Dresse Dep. at 321-22). Thus, because the database was not created exclusively by or for Dr. Coll, several entities can establish an ownership interest in the database and the database fails to qualify as a trade secret. Defendants IPM and PCC are entitled to summary judgment as a matter of law with regard to Count VI.

To establish a conversion claim, Count VII, plaintiffs must prove "that the defendant participated in (1) an unlawful exercise, (2) of ownership, dominion, or control, (3) over the personal property of another, (4) in denial or repudiation of that person's rights thereto." Gov't of Rwanda v. Rwanda Working Grp., 227 F. Supp. 2d 45, 62 (D.D.C. 2002). Because there is no evidence in the record that IPM or PCC exercised ownership, dominion, or control in the taking of any tangible materials, the Court is unwilling to find conversion in the taking of any tangible materials. (Conrad Dep. at 216-17; Dreese Dep. 93-94). Moreover, there is no evidence that IPM or PCC exercised ownership, dominion, or control of the tangible material after it was taken. When IPM learned in July 2000 that the materials stored in San Antonio by Alexander and Buchanan might contain property improperly taken from plaintiffs, IPM directed Alexander to return the property. (Dreese Dep. at 106; Inner Peace Movement Executive Board Resolution of Aug. 5, 2000; Letter from Ben Dresse to Patricia Alexander, May 18, 2001). Alexander verbally assured IPM that all the materials had been returned. Id. IPM subsequently learned on May 6, 2001, that some materials that remained in the San Antonio storage might belong to plaintiffs. Id. IPM directed Alexander to immediately return all materials and to submit proof of completion to IPM. Id. Thus, after exhaustive discovery, plaintiffs cannot point to any facts that suggest that IPM or PCC exerted dominion or control over any of plaintiffs' documents, and this claims fails as a matter of law.

Plaintiffs' claims regarding the conversion of copyrighted works, copyrightable materials, and databases also fail as a matter of law. These claims are preempted by the Copyright Act. See Sturdza v. United Arab Emirates, 281 F.3d 1287, 1304 (D.C. Cir. 2002). Moreover, with regard to databases, "[c]opyright protection extends only to those components of a work that are original to the author. . . . Others may copy the underlying facts from the publication, but not the precise words used to present them." Id. at 340, 348.

Finally, there is no basis in fact for plaintiffs' claim that IPM or PCC had any involvement in diverting the 800 telephone number or the Post Office Box; and it is FURTHER ORDERED that Plaintiffs' Motion for Order of Final Judgment against Defendants Patricia Alexander and Cherie Buchanan is DENIED. Despite the Court's September 22, 2003 Order, nothing in the record before the Court demonstrates that Patricia Alexander received the Notice of Deposition; and it is FURTHER ORDERED and ADJUDGED that the Clerk shall enter final judgment in favor of Defendants Inner Peace Movement and Peace Community Church.
