EXHIBIT TO OFFICER'S CERTIFICATE

On April 7, 1994, all of the assets, liabilities, and operations of Armco Steel Company, L.P., a Delaware limited partnership ("ASCLP") were assumed by AK Steel Corporation, a Delaware corporation. AK Steel Corporation was formerly named AK Management Corporation and was the corporate general partner of ASCLP.

The general steps in the transactions were as follows:

1. AK Management Corporation changed its name to AK Steel Corporation.
2. Each of the limited partners of ASCLP transferred their limited partnership interests in ASCLP to AK Steel Holding Corporation, a new entity, in return for stock in AK Steel Holding Corporation.
3. The shareholders of AK Steel Corporation contributed their stock in AK Steel Corporation to AK Steel Holding Corporation in return for stock of AK Steel Holding Corporation.
4. AK Steel Holding Corporation contributed all of the limited partnership interests in ASCLP which it received from the former limited partners of ASCLP to AK Steel Corporation.
5. ASCLP ceased to exist as a legal entity and all of its assets, liabilities, and operations passed to AK Steel Corporation by operation of law.
6. Additional shares of stock in AK Steel Holding Corporation were sold to the public in an initial public offering.

As a result of the above transactions, all of the assets and liabilities of ASCLP are now assets and liabilities of AK Steel Corporation.
