IN THE UNITED STATES PATENT AND TRADEMARK OFFICE

In re Registrations of:

Response to Notice of Non-Recordation of an Assignment Document

On January 5, 2023, Rapiscan Holdings, Inc. (“Assignee”) filed a New Assignment Recordal Form (“Assignment Recordal”) to record the Confirmatory Intellectual Property Assignment (“IP Assignment”) of Trademark Registration Nos. 4,750,283, 4,234,386 and 4,238,078 (“Registrations”) from the registrant, Voti Inc. (“Assignor”) to Assignee. See Exhibit A. The Assignment Recordal indicated that Assignor and Assignee are both corporations. Id.

On February 9, 2023, Assignee has received the attached Notice of Non-Recordation of an Assignment Document (“Notice of Non-Recordation”). Exhibit A. The Notice of Non-Recordation states that Registrant’s IP Assignment has not been recorded for two reasons:

1. Because “[t]here is a discrepancy with the conveying party entity type”; specifically, “[t]he cover sheet has Corporation but the document has Company”; and
2. Because the “statement for the Goodwill of the business was omitted. 15 U.S.C. §1060(a).”

In response to the first ground of refusal to record the IP Assignment, Assignee respectfully states that both, Assignee and Assignor, are corporations as stated in the Assignment Recordal. The fact that the IP Assignment describes the entity type of both parties as “a company incorporated under.” means just that -- that the entity type of each party is a corporation. In other words, an entity or company that has been “incorporated” by definition is a corporation. For example, see the definition of the terms “incorporate” or “incorporated” from the Merriam-Webster Dictionary that states that to “incorporate” or “incorporated” means “to form into a legal corporation” (<https://www.merriam-webster.com/dictionary/incorporate>). See Exhibit B. See also an explanation from the website of Government of British Columbia stating that “incorporating a business creates a legal entity called a corporation or company.” Id.

In support of its arguments, Assignee also encloses as Exhibit C corporate records for both parties: 1. Certificate of Existence from Canada for Assignor, and 2. Certificate of Incorporation certified by Delaware Secretary of State for Assignee. Both of the attached documents confirm that both parties to the IP Assignment are incorporated companies, i.e. both are corporations.

In response to the second ground of refusal to record the IP Assignment, Assignee points out the below language from the IP Assignment that confirms that the goodwill of the business symbolized by and associated with the marks covered by the assigned Registrations has been assigned to Assignee as required by 15 U.S.C. §1060(a):

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of One Canadian Dollar (CAN$1.00) and other good and valuable consideration, the receipt and sufficiency of which is hereby acknowledge, the Assignor hereby confirms having sold, assigned and transferred unto the Assignee its entire rights, title and interest in and to the intellectual property listed in the attached Schedule “A”, including:

- i. its rights, title and interest to the goodwill connected with any use of the trademarks listed in Schedule “A”, and the right to recover for past and present infringement, to pursue any related proceedings including opposition proceedings based on or related to such trademarks, and to retain all benefits including all damages and profits arising therefrom;

Therefore, Registrant respectfully requests that the USPTO Assignment Recordation Branch, Public Records Division, record the IP Assignment for the Registrations.

Respectfully Submitted,

Rapiscan Holdings, Inc.

Did you know?

From its roots, incorporate means basically "add into a body" or "form into a body". So, for example, a chef might decide to incorporate a couple of new ingredients into an old recipe, and then might incorporate that new item into the restaurant's dinner menu. The restaurant itself was probably incorporated at the beginning, and so is now a corporation—that is, a "body" that's legally allowed to act like a single person in certain ways, even if it may have many individual employees. As you can see, the two meanings turn out to be fairly different.
